Compretta foresees delay in $23 million tax cut

By BRENT MACEY

Hancock County's State Representative J.P. Compretta said there will be a proposal by several members of the legislature this year to delay a $21 million dollar tax cut to Mississippi tax payers for one year "as a way to meet the needs of the next fiscal year."

Compretta said the tax cut, the third and final stage of the $83 million tax cut passed by the legislature in 1979, is scheduled to go into effect this year.

However, he stated the legislature scheduled to meet Jan. 6 is convening in a year when the availability of revenue to fund the necessary services of the state is unusually short.

"That shortage will require the legislature to take a close look at our people's needs for services and establish priorities based on those needs," he said.

"Of course we will have a fiscal briefing at the outset of the session which will give us a somewhat clearer picture of how the state's finances look for the coming year," he said.

Compretta feels these money problems cannot be solved by the legislature alone, but will require a team effort of the state, county and local governing bodies.

He said 1980 had been an important year for Mississippi government and the people of Mississippi.

"This was the first year of Governor Winter's administration and the beginning of new terms for the members of the State Legislature. We faced tight budgets and a sagging and inflationary economy," he said.

Compretta said one of the most important accomplishments in the 1980 session was balancing the state's $2.6 billion budget for the 1981 fiscal year.

"Despite the tight money situation, the legislature adequately funded priority items of state government without raising taxes," he said.

He stated the 1980 session showed a total of 2,791 bills introduced; 1,209 by the Senate, and, 1,582 by the House.

"Some 629 or 27.5 percent were passed," Compretta said.

He added, "No bills were vetoed by the governor."

Fewer bills should be introduced in 1981, with about the same percentage passing, Compretta predicted.

The Hancock solon said a major issue facing the legislature in 1981 is the ability to balance the budget without cutting needed services.

"This would include financing education, highway maintenance and construction and social services such as Medicaid and welfare," he explained.

Revision of school laws are also listed by the Hancock lawmaker as a major issue.

"As a member of the House Education Committee I feel there will be a concentrated effort in the next session to revise and update the complex set of state laws governing our schools," he said.

Proposals already formulated by that committee include:

- Expanding the State Board of Education;
- Appointing local school superintendents statewide;

-Establishing a kindergarten program;

-Strengthening compulsory school attendance;

-Repealing the third phase of the tax cut;

-Increasing the tobacco, corporate income, soft drink, oil and gas, severance and alcohol taxes;

-Requiring only a simple majority to pass school bond issues.

Compretta said the re-appraisal bill passed in 1980 is also a major consideration for 1981.

"We will have to take a look at problems arising in counties as a result of the bill," he said.

Re-appraisal must now be completed by each county before 1983.

Compretta said the Commission of Budget and Accounting has already predicted a tight money session for 1981.

"The demands for money will be greater than the supply and I am certain there will have to be cutbacks from requested levels in state agency budgets," he stated.

He added, "We may feel an additional squeeze with the change in Washington. There could be some substantial changes in federal programs which would have a significant impact on our state, since we have so many federal programs and federal funds constitute a considerable percentage of our total state budget."

Gulfview roof lacks warranty

By BRENT MACEY

Larry Tully and Jim English, president and vice-president respectively of MIRA, Inc. of Long Beach, met with the Hancock County School Board Saturday to explain problems with the warranty and surface of the Gulfview Elementary School roof.

MIRA was contracted to repair the roof after a tornado damaged the roof in May.

The company has issued a five year warranty to the school board for completed work.

A second warranty from Anchor Coating Company of Milwaukee, the manufacturer, must be received by the school board before final payment can be made.

That warranty has not been received by the board.

Tully said the roof had been inspected by Anchor Coating.

"The samples show coating thicknesses meet specifications set by the manufacturer," Tully said.

However, a letter was sent to the school board by Anchor Coating, informing the board a warranty could not be granted for the school roof because payments for roof materials have not been made, Tully said.

English said he has invoices showing full payments for materials to Roofing Systems and Coatings, Inc. of Gulfport, the supplier of the Anchor coating.

English said MIRA is currently involved in litigation against both the manufacturer and supplier for failing to produce a warranty on the roof.

Tully said recent inspection of the roof showed sections where the coating is not adhering to the roof surface.

He stated this was not unusual and that the roof would continue to bubble for a period of two years.

He attributed the bubbling to building expansion occurring as the result of temperature changes.

After you go through those cycle changes and the sections which bubbled

Coast Better Business Bureau tells Hancock expansion plans

By EDGAR PEREZ

The Mississippi Gulf Coast Better Business Bureau, entering its second six months of operation out of Gulfport offices, is considering establishing a local telephone number in Hancock County.

"We already have about 30 Hancock County businesses on our membership roles and we are receiving about eight calls per day from Hancock consumers," said Howard B. Slaughter, Coast BBB manager.

"When the call from Hancock County to the BBB office in Gulfport is no longer a long distance call, we feel the number of complaints and requests for information will increase dramatically," Slaughter added.

The Better Business Bureau is chartered in Mississippi.

The manager reports the Coast BBB, since its establishment in July, has experienced a very successful first six months.

The bureau's early life on the Coast has been marked by continuing membership growth and the addition of new services, Slaughter points out.

"Our goal for the end of 1980 was 400 members, but due to a slowdown during the holidays we will be a little short of that number," he explained.

"However, we had a very successful beginning and our membership presently is 336, representing businesses in all of the cities on the Gulf Coast, and in all phases and types of businesses," Slaughter said.

The growth of the membership in the Gulf Coast office has made that office the second largest in the state, only surpassed by the Jackson office.

"When we opened the office our information on local firms was very limited. The office only had one phone exchange, and we only had an answering service, which made it very difficult to supply the kind of information which we needed to give the consumers and business people on the Gulf Coast," he explained.

"We start the New Year with two phone exchanges, one for Harrison County and a new phone exchange for Jackson County, and we are also studying the feasibility of installing a Hancock County phone exchange," the manager continued.

The office now has a full time secretary who is available to answer questions a consumer may have about local businesses, and to help anyone with a complaint against a business.

"The phone calls coming into our office have increased dramatically. We presently receive about 40 to 70 calls a day. Of these calls, 20 percent are complaints, the other 80 percent being requests for information on local businesses," he reports.

"We feel that with this kind of consumer support we can help the Gulf Coast consumer make better buying decisions. With the increase of information available, we can help channel the consumer into the businesses which are reputable and can alert them as to the businesses which have many consumer complaints."

The Better Business Bureau does not make recommendations; however, the office can generate consumer awareness and alert them to any problem they might have in dealing with a local firm.

"Feedback from local business members tells us that they feel the support of the BBB system is good business," Slaughter noted.

"The BBB plaque hanging in a business helps to instill consumer confidence. We have also been able to alert businesses to potential complaints which they have been able to resolve," Slaughter stated.

He listed the following rundown on BBB services:

(1) The BBB is the first source to which millions of customers turn each year for information on business firms they plan to patronize.

The Bureau maintains a comprehensive file on businesses in its area. These files form the basis for the reports it gives upon request as to the performance and reliability record of the firm, including the incidence of customer complaints against it and its record of satisfying such complaints.

(2) The BBB distributes information leaflets and booklets on a wide range of products and services.

(3) The BBB attempts to keep the marketplace clean by alerting the media and the public to frauds and rackets.

This not only protects consumers but

Chancery clerk seeking computerization, space

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Consolidation of local agency offices, additional office space, improved efficiency and computerized record keeping are the 1981 goals of Hancock County Chancery Clerk E. Michael Necaise.

Necaise took office as chancery clerk one year ago.

The chancery clerk is responsible for maintaining all records of the Youth and Chancery Courts, and recording all instruments filed in his office. He is also the county treasurer, auditor and secretary for the County Board of Supervisors.

Regarding consolidation, Necaise reported Friday morning, "The County Civil Defense, Extension Office, Soil Conservation Service, Farmer's Home Administration and an office of the Assessor-Tax Collector are all in offices scattered throughout Bay St. Louis."

"We have to rent space for these offices. I'd like to see a facility to house all these agencies under one roof to reduce our operating costs," Necaise explained.

In reference to additional work space the chancery clerk noted, "All of our departments located in the County Courthouse need more space."

"Primarily we need more storage. Anyone can walk in any office here and see boxes of supplies piled up against the walls because we don't have enough storage space," Necaise said.

The chancery clerk cited the need for a larger courthouse, but at the same time noted a new building may not be feasible for the near future.

"We're going to have to have additional offices or something. This courthouse was built a long time ago and has served us well. But this county and its government are both growing and we have to meet the needs of the people," Necaise explained.

Regarding improved efficiency, the chancery clerk noted, "The goal for this office is to continue running as efficiently as possible."

"Inflation has hit county government just like everybody else. Inflation has hit the supervisors' budgets more than any county department. For example, diesel fuel, tires and equipment repair costs have risen dramatically this year," he explained.

"Inflation is cutting into our budgets, but we've been cutting back a lot and watching spending," Necaise noted.

"We're looking for ways of improving office efficiency, ways of cutting costs and modernizing record keeping with a computer system," Necaise said.

In reference to the computer system the chancery clerk explained county employee payroll and financial records could be maintained and processed more efficiently.

PEARL HARBOR POT PORT—U.S. Customs Service agents Friday unload some $85-$70 million worth of marijuana from the ocean-going tug Dr. Jack alongside Custom Service docks at Hancock County's Port Blenville Industrial Park near Pearl Harbor. The Dr. Jack was boarded earlier in the week by the U.S. Coast Guard some 200 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico. The fleet of vessels in the background are a few of more than 20 craft in the harbor confiscated by authorities in the current war against marijuana smugglers in the Gulf off the Mississippi and Louisiana coasts. A Customs Service official Friday said his department has been plagued at Port Blenville by persons in small boats attempting to board the confiscated vessels in hopes of finding weed. The official added the impounded craft all have been cleaned and hosed free of marijuana, and in addition, are under constant armed guard. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

New machines speed ballot count

By BRENT MACEY

Henry Otis, Hancock County registrar of voters, said new votomatic machines and precinct ballot counters have saved his office a lot of time and energy in counting election returns in the past year.

His office acquired the machines in the early part of 1980. Since then the machines have been used during the last three elections, including the presidential primary election in June, the recent presidential elections, and the Hancock County School Board runoff election in October.

One hundred votomatic machines and five precinct ballot counters are being stored in a closet in the Circuit Clerk's office to be used again during the upcoming city elections in May.

"Each PBC machine can count 45 ballots per minute," Otis said.

He added, "With five machines we can count 225 per minute."

Otis said the machines have enabled him to complete counting ballots in one-fifth the time it used to take when using paper ballots.

"It took two and one-half hours to count all the ballots during the last election," he stated.

"I was out of the office at 11 p.m. the night of the last election. With the old method I would not have gotten home until 4 a.m.," he added.

Otis demonstrated how each machine works by setting them up on an office desk.

Both machines are contained in a brief case of 'high impact plastic.'

"It is the same type of plastic the air force uses for fighter planes," Otis said.

He opened the briefcase enclosing the votomatic machine and folded out two flaps up from inside which concealed the view of the machine from left and right.

The flaps also gave support to the back of the briefcase, concealing the machine on three sides and giving the distinct impression of a voting booth.

"The votomatic has no moving parts," Otis said.

"The only electricity involved is an extension cord attached to a small light bulb to light the inside if necessary," he explained.

He inserted a demonstration card into a slot in the machine underneath a number of hard paper flaps listing candidates of the previous presidential election.

By punching a small metal prod into holes opposite names and numbers of each candidate listed on the hard flaps, Otis flipped from flap to flap, punching a hole beside each name, until a number of votes had been cast.

He removed the demonstration card and showed the result. The card had been punched with a pattern of holes and resembled a computer card.

Each card is capable of receiving 228 punches.

"That is all there is to it," Otis said. "We thought at first that we might have had problems with it, especially with old people, but we have had no complaints whatsoever," he added.

The card was placed in the small PBC machine.

The PBC machine, actually a computer, is about one-quarter the size of the votomatic machine and weighs about 10 pounds.

Opening the briefcase and plugging in an extension cord was all it took to prepare the machine.

In a second the computer tabulated the marks on demonstration ballot and produced a ticket resembling the tab from an adding machine.

Otis said the machines were much more accurate in giving a true count during an election.

"The paper ballot method had a plus or minus 5 percent accuracy," he stated.

In reference to the old model of electronic voting machines used throughout many parts of the country, Otis said, "Those machines are so heavy they have to be transported by trucks equipped with a hydraulic tail gate for loading."

"You can fit six or eight of these votomatic machines in the trunk of a car," he added.

"In addition, you do not need a climate controlled warehouse to store the machines. The cases have a gasket which seals out moisture. For that reason you can store them almost anywhere," he concluded.

Legion hosts handicapped

American Legion Post No. 77 in Waveland recently sponsored a Christmas party for some 10 children at the Silver Creek Handicapped Center in Kiln.

Teacher Charlotte Johnson of the Silver Creek school said recently, "We teach five preschoolers and five mentally retarded children."

"At the party Santa Claus visited with the children, gave them gifts, stuffed animals, fruit and candy," she reported.

"The American Legion post gave the school a bentwood rocking chair and a large red wagon," Johnson noted.

Participating in the event were Legion representatives Norma Haas, Frances Stork and Clare Clements.

County school personnel involved were Jane Jefferson, Aids Pearl Comfort and Brenda Whitfield, and Bus Driver Betty Page.

"The computer would save a us lot of time. If we wanted to know something about one particular account, we could press a button and get an up-to-the-minute report," Necaise explained.

The chancery clerk further explained that with the present manual records system it takes several hours for a member of his staff to tabulate figures to determine an accurate total for a county account.

"We could do things like put information on the sheriff's automobiles in the computer and determine when it would be economically beneficial to the county to sell one of the cars because of mechanical failures," he explained.

"This county deals with computers a lot now, but we're hiring these services from private companies," Necaise added.

1980 ACCOMPLISHMENTS

The chancery clerk reported in 1980 he has generated more income for the county by investing certain funds and microfilmed most records at no cost to county taxpayers.

Necaise reported he now invests portions of the county's General Fund in 30-day money market certificates and expects after four years to generate approximately $500,000.

"We could buy a computer for the county with the interest income we're receiving alone," he said.

"This area of investment has never been utilized before," Necaise added.

Regarding microfilming of county records, Necaise reported, "The State Archives Department in Jackson came here and microfilmed all deeds, deeds of trust, wills and supervisor's meeting minutes."

Necaise explained the archives department copied the records at no cost to the county and is storing the documents in Jackson.

"I'm responsible for the county's records, but if something happened to our records there would have been no way to replace them if we had not microfilmed them," the chancery clerk said.

"I'm also trying to get all court records microfilmed," he added. Necaise had no idea of the amount of records microfilmed, but reported it took the archives department 6.5 months to copy the records which spanned some 150 years.

PERSONAL VIEWPOINT

Necaise feels his first year in office has been beneficial along with developing good working relationships with his staff and other county officials.

"This has been a good year. When I came into this office I dug in deep and got leveled off—a process everyone's got to go through in a new job," he said. "I've been doing a lot of studying and reading up about my responsibilities," he explained.

"At first, there were several figures I would have to look up if someone asked about them, but now I can tell you without even looking them up," Necaise explained.

"I've enjoyed my first year with good working relationships with other officials," Necaise reported.

Necaise commended Assessor-Tax Collector Edward D. Murtagh for initiating an in-house countywide reappraisal program.

The chancery clerk also commended the supervisors for their assistance in the program and noted, "We've gotten a reappraisal program going before many other counties did. I'd like to commend Murtagh for doing this job himself and the supervisors for working with him."

"This is a team effort and we've got a good group of men working to improve our county," he said.

"My staff has done a fantastic job and we enjoy serving the people," Necaise stated.

"We try to provide courteous and prompt service. We look forward to people coming by and our books are open to anyone," he explained.

"If anyone needs any information, they can come to me or a member of my staff—we're glad to help. We try to give the best service we can," Necaise said.

"I'm thankful to be here and I appreciate this opportunity to serve the people. I'm doing my best to serve our citizens," the chancery clerk reported.

1981 COUNTY OUTLOOK

Although the local economy is now apparently in a slump, Necaise is optimistic of the county's overall future. "I was glad to see the bond issue pass for Alcan Cable Co.'s expansion plans in Bay St. Louis and that company is growing locally," he said.

"I'll be glad when Borg-Warner Chemical Corp.'s Port Bienville plant goes into operation and construction of the U.S. Army Ammunition Plant at the National Space Technology Laboratories seems to be progressing well," Necaise stated.

"The supervisors and the County Port and Harbor Commission are doing a good job and drawing good industries to our area," the chancery clerk said.

"I'll also be glad when the economy gets back on its feet. When the housing industry gets going again we're going to see a lot of growth in Hancock County," he noted.

"Hancock County is in a position to grow more than any other county in Mississippi because we've got more land to offer for homes and industry," Necaise cited.

"Port Bienville Industrial Park has a good highway, water and railroad access. Stennis International Airport also has a lot to offer industry," he said.

"We are heading in the direction of people being employed here and spending more of their money here too," Necaise added.

Mentally retarded children can be taught to master difficult physical skills similar to those possessed by other children, says Dr. Jim R. Old days equivalent of two-bath home was the two-path version

By S. GRADY THIGPEN

Back in the old days, there was no such thing as a bathroom in most homes - no bath tub, no commode, no lavatory, no kitchen sink, no running water.

To young people now growing up in this day, this must seem almost unbelievable; but even the finest homes had outdoor toilets.

A Pitcher full of water and a wash bowl sat on a wash stand in most bedrooms. An old time chamber pot sat under the bed in the better homes, while in many homes there was not even that convenience.

For drinking water in the old time home, there was a cedar bucket with a dipper in it, or maybe a gourd for a dipper, sitting on a shelf out on the porch. There was one dipper. Everyone used it - that was before germs had been discovered. On the shelf next to the water bucket was a wash pan which all the family used.

At our old home, just a few feet from the porch of the house there was a bored well with a shed over it extending back to the porch. A rope and pulley was used to draw the water up in a long bucket made especially for that purpose.

We drew all the water used for household purposes from this well.

Cold or warm, summer and winter we washed our hands and faces out on the porch. On a cold morning, water from the well kept warm down deep in the earth, was drawn for this purpose.

Where you now have a house with a bath, back then we had a house with a path.

Where people now have houses with two baths, there were houses with two paths in the old days.

There were usually two outhouses, one for the men, the other for the women, or maybe just one for the women. The men and the boys would go to the back part of the lot or out into the nearby woods.

The old time outhouses had no windows, or ventilation except a square hole in each side just above eye level measuring about eight inches square.

These old outhouses were miserably hot in summer and almost unbearably cold in winter.

As with everything new, when people first began to put in modern bathrooms, many jokes were told about them.

Most of these old jokes were founded on actual occurrences that were told and retold.

One was about a well-to-do family who ordered a bath room outfit. When it came, they set the tub in and connected it up according to instructions.

They figured out how to install the lavatory. They then installed the commode, with the water connected to it.

When they had gotten all done, they had two pieces left over that they could not decide what to do with.

Finally they decided that the company had wanted to be generous with them and had sent them something extra. They framed Grandpa's picture in the commode seat and hung it on the wall in the parlor, or front room. They took the lid, or cover, also made of wood, into the kitchen to use as a bread board.

Another old story, always claimed to be based on actual fact and usually told on some well known person in the community, was the one about the country boy's first visit to a modern bath room. Never having seen one before and having had no instruction in the use of the different fixtures therein, he had to figure things out on the spur of the moment.

He washed his face and hands in the lavatory; he pulled his shoes and socks off; he washed one foot in the commode, pulled the lever, and got fresh water and then washed the other one.

With all this done, he then proceeded to use the tub for a purpose for which it was never intended.

In the good old days every member of the family was required to take a bath on Saturday night, summer and winter - all year round.

There was not much problem in the summer time. The boys would go almost daily to the nearby creek for a swim. Or they would take a wood keg or wood bucket, drill a small hole in the bottom of it, fill it with water, hang the container from a joist in the shed or barn, get under it, pull the stopper out and get a good shower bath.

Or they would fill the dug-out trough in the lot full of water from the well there and bathe in it, always after dark, of course.

When cool weather came, bathing was more of a problem. A good hot fire was kept going practically all the time in one room where all the family gathered. It took lots of wood and lots of work to keep a good fire going.

But on Saturday night in cold weather, a roaring fire would be started in another room in which to take our baths. An old time wood tub, with a few gallons of water in it would be set before the fire.

A cast iron pot with water in it would be placed on the cook stove, or over the open fire.

Enough hot water would be added to the tub to bring the water in it to a comfortable temperature.

With everything ready the Saturday night bather would get into the tub and proceed to take his weekly bath.

The most disagreeable part of this ordeal was getting out of the tub, stark naked before the hot fire. The side towards the fire would quickly get too hot, while the side away from the fire would quickly get too cold. The bather, to stay at all comfortable, would have to keep turning round and round while drying himself, and then rush into his clothes.

I said ordeal, but it was not considered as such back then, but as a necessary and usual custom.

Old time tubs, when I can first remember, were made from sawing barrels in half. It was necessary to keep some water in them all the time to keep them from falling apart.

Another ordeal forced on children when I was growing up was washing our feet in cold water at night. It was not so bad until cold wather came. Many a time I have slipped off to bed without this abluion when I was not watched too closely. I remember, however, that there was always an exhilarating and pleasant feeling after it was over.

At our house we had an old time dug well in the barnyard. I must have drawn millions of gallons of water in an old oaken bucket, when I was growing up, from that old well to water the work stock and the milk cows.

The conditions that I have tried to outline did not prevail just in the long ago. Most women over 50 to 60 years old now know from personal experience what I have been relating.

The lack of rain in recent weeks is a big concern of the Forestry Department, according to Rand Riedrich, county forester.

Riedrich says we are right now in an extreme fire danger period and urges residents not to burn trash fires.

We contacted a member of the Hancock County Firemen's Association and he also urged residents to be extremely careful with fires.

Our fire departments and forestry people have been very busy fighting woods fires in recent weeks.

We think we all should heed the warnings about being in an extreme fire danger period and act accordingly.

To report wild forest fires, you can reach the forestry department at 255-7152 or call the Hancock Firemen's Association at 467-4736.

It has been a very long holiday season for the youngsters, but many will hate to see Monday roll around with school opening again.

We have noted an increased number of bicycles on the streets and we urge all motorists to be extremely careful. Of course parents sure do their best in teaching their children the rules of the road.

It did not seem too long for 1980 to slip by for us, and it will not be too long for summer to roll in for another vacation for our youngsters.

Eye Glasses Aid Millions to See

By far the most commonly used medical device in the world today is prescription eyeglasses. There are relatively few individuals who do not need glasses at least part of the time at some time during life.

Prescription eyeglasses, including contact lenses, are used for the correction of refractive errors. The main function of glasses is to help focus rays of light on the retina. Improperly fitted glasses will not damage the eye, but they can cause headache, nausea, eye fatigue, blurred vision and irritation, says a booklet from the American Medical Association.

Tinted glasses and sunglasses only cut down on glare from light, and, unless they are also corrective lenses, have no effect on vision. It is best to limit use of tinted glasses to the beach, snowy areas, and to use when driving over concrete highways in bright light.

Contact lenses are growing more popular and seem to benefit some people more than others. Unlike glasses, improperly fitted contacts can irritate the cornea and cause serious eye problems.

Two types of contact lenses are now available: hard and soft. Soft lenses for some are more comfortable. They easily conform to the shape of the cornea, absorb moisture from the eye and keep foreign matter away because they cover a large surface of the eye. They are less likely to fall out than are hard lenses.

But soft contacts often give a less crisp image, are more difficult to clean and are more expensive. Some eye conditions rule out their use entirely and others are not helped by them.

Some ophthalmologists are worried that the soft lenses may more easily become contaminated with bacteria and cause infection, or that they may absorb chemicals that could injure the eyes. Pregnant women have been advised not to wear soft contacts, as sufficient testing to rule out danger to the fetus has not been done, the AMA booklet says.

NEWS

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles produced by the Mississippi Economic Council reviewing energy research underway in Mississippi.

ENERGY RESEARCH

Rapidly rising costs of energy and the uncertainty of energy supplies threaten the future of every industrialized country in the free world.

The political and social instability of countries which are major crude oil suppliers, together with the worldwide recognition that oil and natural gas supplies are a limited resource, have given birth to a whole new era of energy technology. This technology is striving to supplement or replace traditional forms of energy.

Mississippi, a developing state highly dependent on ample supplies of energy for any real future growth, is on this technological frontier, actively engaged in a variety of energy research projects.

Major research efforts center on coal, production of alcohol as a fuel source, solar energy, mineral deposits, and advanced oil recovery techniques.

Energy research activities are underway in Mississippi primarily at the state's three largest universities - University of Mississippi, Mississippi State University, and the University of Southern Mississippi.

COAL RESEARCH

With oil and natural gas supplies rapidly diminishing in the U.S., and recognizing the instability of foreign supplies, the nation's energy suppliers have turned their attention to the most abundant fossil fuel available in America - coal.

C. William Verity Jr., chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the U.S., has observed that America is the 'Saudi Arabia for coal,' that full utilization of our coal supplies could make this country energy independent, and our coal supplies could carry us easily through to the time that U.S. technology perfects perhaps the ultimate fuel - fusion.

Coal research underway in Mississippi focuses on three main areas - gasification of lignite (a low grade coal found in the state), coal liquids refining, and magnetohydrodynamic research (studying ways to get more efficient burning of coal to generate electric power).

Research projects in progress include lignite resources of Central and Southwest Mississippi, evaluation of the West Warrior Basin Coal Field in East Mississippi and West Alabama, and comparisons of Mississippi Lignites. Also, research is underway on advanced prospecting technology.

MAGNETOHYDRODYNAMIC RESEARCH

generation is a method for more efficient utilization of the nation's coal resources, including lignite.

The U.S. Department of Energy is contracting with four major universities, with MSU being the largest funding recipient among the four, and several industries for the commercial development of MHD power generation systems.

Using this process in conjunction with a conventional steam power plant, the overall efficiency of the plant can be increased from 24-percent to an estimated 55 - 60 percent according to MSU researchers. This represents a substantial decrease in the amount of fuel required to produce a given amount of electric power.

At MSU, a facility has been constructed and designated for simulation of very high temperature gases in the down stream portion of a combined MHD plant-conventional steam power plant.

This facility has been used by DOE for materials testing purposes, for testing steam plant components, for diagnostic instrumentation development, and for thermal modeling of MHD plant components.

In conjunction with the research, MSU has been charged with the development of diagnostic instrumentation systems to be used at MHD test facilities in coal-fired electric generating plants throughout the nation.

This instrumentation uses a high technology laser-based system which can make measurements very rapidly in the hostile environments encountered in the vicinity of boilers and other utility components.

This technology has already been successfully used at Argonne National Laboratories and utility plants operated by Commonwealth Edison in Chicago.

Because of this work, MSU has been selected as a subcontractor to Babcock and Wilcox, an industry specializing in power plant construction, to design and construct a pilot-size MHD test facility at Tullahoma, Tenn. This facility will be a 20-megawatt system and is expected to be the last step before construction of a demonstration facility.

GASIFICATION OF LIGNITES

University of Mississippi researchers say Mississippi possesses some five billion tons of recoverable lignite coal. Since the knowledge of the amounts of this recoverable low grade coal has only recently been verified, no work has been undertaken with lignite to evaluate its suitability for the various coal conversion processes, including coal gasification.

The University of Mississippi, under Dr. Henry Haynes, is presently constructing a flexible, micro-coal gasification of Mississippi lignite to make comparisons of gasification rates of the state's lignite with coals from other areas of the country.

Ultimately the project is intended to develop a kinetic model for lignites which can be used to predict yields under a given set of process conditions.

The research is jointly supported by the Mississippi Minerals Resources Institute located at Ole Miss and Mississippi Chemical Corporation, a Yazoo City based agricultural chemicals cooperative.

Gasification is a first step in the production of a variety of fuels and chemicals from coal.

The coal gasification product (synthesis gas) may be used directly as an industrial fuel gas, or it may be upgraded to pipeline quality gas.

Gasoline and other liquid fuels, researchers say, can be produced from this gas through two established processes - the Fischer-Tropsch process and the Mobil coal-methanol-gasoline process.

In addition, a variety of chemicals can be derived from this synthesis gas, the most notable, ammonia for the fertilizer industry.

COAL LIQUIDS STUDIES

Dr. Henry James at the University of Mississippi has pursued a number of projects concerned with the upgrading of coal-derived 'syncrude' to a high quality fuel such as gasoline.

The research group, working since 1971, has received financial support from the National Science Foundation, the Energy Research and Development Administration, and the DOE.

The UM researchers say producing a thick, tar-like asphalt material from coal is not difficult, but refining the material to produce a high quality fuel is difficult and not economically feasible in today's market.

In known methods, large quantities of expensive hydrogen must be added to the syncrude during the upgrading, and early UM efforts have centered on exploring a number of possible catalysts to accelerate the process.

These efforts were not totally successful, and recent efforts have involved zeolite cracking catalysts - most petroleum cracking catalysts are zeolite based - and UM experiments utilizing these catalysts reveal some success when used on heavy coal liquids.

LIGNITE DEPOSIT RESEARCH

Dr. Arthur W. Cleaves of the University of Mississippi is conducting a study of surface and subsurface deposits of lignite coal in Central and Southwest Mississippi.

UM researchers say the study is

CONSUMER REPORT

BILL ALLAIN,
ATTORNEY GENERAL

CREDIT CARD BILLING ERRORS

Attorney General Bill Allain informs consumers that according to the federal law, "The Fair Credit Billing Act," your credit card billing complaints must be answered. If you think you have been billed the wrong amount, have been charged for products you didn't buy or were never delivered, didn't get credited for a payment you sent, or think that any other billing error has occurred Allain suggests that you remember the following points.

—Once you have notified the credit card company in writing of your complaint within 60 days of getting the bill, the company must within 30 days acknowledge that it has received the complaint. Within 90 days, it must either correct the mistake or send a written explanation as to why the original bill was correct.

—During this 90 day period, you do not have to pay any of the amount that is in dispute or any finance charge on this amount. (You still, of course, have to make payments on other charge purchases you make.)

—The company cannot close your account or give a bad report on you to a credit bureau during this period.

—If a company doesn't follow these regulations, it forfeits the amount disputed up to $50, whether a billing error has been made or not.

—If the merchandise you charge is defective or shoddy and you can't get satisfaction from the seller, you can refuse to pay the credit card company.

—You do, though, have to be prepared, if the issuer sues you for the amount, to demonstrate that you made an authentic effort to resolve your problems with the business where you both the product or service. You also, of course, have to have evidence that the product or service was unsatisfactory.

—The purchase has to involve an amount more than $50 and must involve a business within the same state as you or within 100 miles of your home.

Innovations highlight busy year for assessor

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The major accomplishment during 1980 in the Hancock County Tax Collector-Assessor's office was the ground work for the reappraisal of all properties in the county according to Edward (Eddie) Murtagh.

Murtagh said, "This is something which has been forced upon us by the dictates of the court. The Mississippi Supreme Court has ordered that all property in every county should be re-evaluated by 1983. This is a major project which will take years to complete."

"The very close cooperation of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the tax collector-assessor's office has enabled Hancock to be one of the first counties to face this task on their own," Murtagh added.

The assessor continued, "Representatives from the State Tax Commission and my office have been working very close on the reappraisal."

Murtagh feels that by doing the revaluation of the property itself, Hancock County can save rather than hiring an outside firm to come in and do the service.

Murtagh allowed, "I personally feel that by Hancock County doing the revaluation ourselves, we save the tax payers over $800,000."

The completion of the revaluation is expected to be finalized by December, 1983.

Murtagh expressed appreciation of the county residents in saying, "I would at this time like to express a sincere thanks to the residents of Hancock for their cooperation and assistance with my staff on the measuring and listing program which is one of the first phases of the revaluation."

The assessor reported that he plans on keeping the public informed on all aspects of the work. This includes the reappraisal of personal property, real property, commercial property, land values and mapping.

When the program is accomplished, the individual property owners will be notified and allowed to inspect the work on the reappraisal, according to Murtagh.

Murtagh noted, "The goal of the program is to come up with a fair and equal assessment of all properties in Hancock County as directed by the courts."

Another program instituted in the assessor-tax collector's office in 1980 was the mailing of homestead exemption forms to property owners with postage paid return envelopes. The service has been well received, according to Murtagh. The same procedure will be used in 1981.

Murtagh did say, "The only persons having to come to the assessor's office are those filing for the first time or having a change in their exemptions such as reaching 65 or disability."

A service need for many years is being instituted by Murtagh on mailing out tax bills to all property owners in 1981.

Murtagh said, "We are now mailing out tax statements to the individual property owners, those for whom we have a complete address on file. While this is a new program, we will for sure have some unforeseen difficulties which we hope to have all solved by the start of 1982."

Murtagh emphasized, "My main objective is to render the best service possible to the people of Hancock County."

The assessor had high praises for his staff of deputies in the performances of their duties.

He stated, "The many accomplishments in the assessor-tax collector's office have been made possible by the highly professional attitude of the deputies serving the public. I feel, I have the best staff in the state, they are loyal, competent and very efficient."

CAR ACCIDENT—This Datsun pick-up and a black Mercury collided Friday about 3:15 p.m. on Hwy. 603 near Jordan Street in Shoreline Park. The wrecker righted the pick-up after it turned over twice. The Mercury went into a ditch approximately 125 feet in front of the pick-up. Three victims in the accident were treated and released from Hancock General Hospital. Officers were uncertain Friday how the accident happened. No charges were filed. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

Reappraisal project a county money saver

By BRENT MACEY

Hancock County's reappraisal project is considered one of the major achievements in the county during 1980, A. A. (Dolph) Kellar, president of the Board of Supervisors, said Monday.

Kellar said "in-house" management of the county's reappraisal program will save $250,000 to $350,000.

"State officials consider this a voluntary program," Kellar said with a laugh. "It is really not that at all. It is mandatory when you consider the state will not allow tax collection for 1983 if the reappraisal program is not completed by that time."

"We know what we are doing on this project and we are well ahead of a lot of the other counties. Eddie Murtagh should get the credit for that," Kellar said in reference to Edward Murtagh, county assessor-tax collector in charge of the program.

Kellar said county state-aid road repaving is another achievement for the 1980 year.

"I do not know exactly how many miles of road the county has paved this last year. I know there are not too many roads left in the county which need to be paved. We have come a long way in the last eight years," he said.

Kellar cited the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission's work on the Port Bienville Industrial Site in Pearlport as another major achievement for the county in terms of creating new jobs.

"If it was not for the construction of the Borg-Warner plant and a number of other industries in the area, you would find people would otherwise be going to Louisiana, or Pascagoula for employment," he stated.

Kellar said road construction on South Beach Boulevard is a problem facing the county in the coming year.

He said federal fund applications have already been submitted.

According to Kellar, funding for the road would previously have been handled by the county and board of supervisors through federal aid secondary funds.

Since 1975 the funds have changed to city jurisdiction and must be appropriated from federal urban road funds.

"We are currently working in conjunction with the cities," Kellar said. He stated that construction cost for repairing the road would be approximately $700,000 to $800,000.

"We need funding for that and also we need funding for replacing sand washed out from under the road."

"I certainly hope the funding goes through," Kellar added.

He said the areas where sand had been washed out from under the road caused the worst sections in the road.

"Replacing the sand is the first thing that needs to be done," he explained.

"If we do not do that first then it would be a waste to try to repair the road."

Kellar mentioned the wastewater treatment program as another problem facing the county in 1981.

He said formation of a sewerage board in 1980 was only a first step.

"We do not know now if we will receive the necessary federal funding and we do not know if we can do it ourselves," he stated in reference to the construction of a wastewater treatment plant run on a local basis.

"We are waiting on the legislature for approval of the funds. I do not see any reason why we should not receive them," he added.

He noted a decision is expected in the first part of 1981.

In terms of a tri-county regional program, Kellar said, "There is no way we can compete with Jackson and Harrison Counties. If we go in with them, we would fall way down in the list in terms of funding concerned."

Kellar explained Jackson and Harrison counties' sewerage problem are much greater than those of Hancock County, and would require most of the regional funding.

He stated that cooperation in a tri-county program would also not give Hancock County time to complete a treatment program by 1983 because of the limited funds remaining for Hancock County.

Kellar views current inflation as a serious problem facing Hancock County in the future.

"Inflation in the past few years has hurt tremendously," he said.

"We cannot do what we could do last year with the same amount of money. We just hope something will turn around in the future."

Three hurt on Hwy. 603

By BRENT MACEY

Three persons were treated and released from Hancock General Hospital Friday after a two-car accident on Hwy. 603 at Jordan Street in Shoreline Park.

Alvin Necaise, 73, of Rt. 1, Pass Christian suffered a broken and lacerated hand.

Driver of the other car, Michael Hood, 27, sustained a sprained knee. Steve Long, 25, a passenger in the Hood car, suffered an injured hip. Both men are from Pascagoula.

Highway Patrolman Earl J. (Mike) Cox said, "I can not figure out how it happened."

He said both cars were traveling south on Hwy. 90 when the black Mercury, driven by Long, apparently tried to pass the white Datsun pick-up.

The pick-up over turned twice before coming to rest on its side on the highway, Cox said.

The Mercury went across the road and stopped in a ditch approximately 125 feet from the pick-up, he added.

Cox said he and another officer would return to the scene Saturday to take measurements of tire tracks.

No charges were filed in connection with the accident, Cox said.

Mikovilje, Bilbo exchange vows in Kiln

Annunciation Catholic Church in Kiln formed the setting for a December 20 Nuptial Mass uniting Donna Kay Bilbo and Gene Gary Mikovilje, both of Bay St. Louis.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert H. Bilbo of Kiln. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Nicola Mikovilje of Bay St. Louis.

Rev. Austin Walsh officiated the 3 p.m. double ring ceremony before an altar flanked with baskets of white poinsettias with red ribbon streamers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice and ruffled v-neckline accented with a silk rose. The A-line skirt was bordered with a deep flounce of English net and satin ribbon.

She wore a headpiece of ivory silk flowers and carried long stemmed red roses with baby's breath and ribbon streamers.

Linda Joyce Stockstill of Kiln attended her sister as matron of honor. She was attired in a three piece suit of wine satin with matching silk floral headpiece, and wine accessories. She carried a long stemmed red rose.

Dale Wayne Mikovilje of Kiln served his brother as best man.

Ronnie Bilbo and Terrance Bilbo of Kiln, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was hosted at the bride's parents' home.

Mrs. Bilbo greeted guests wearing a champagne giana gown with lace bodice and matching accessories. A white orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

The groom's mother chose for the occasion a powder blue gown fashioned with pleated skirt and tie belt. She wore a white orchid corsage.

A Christmas theme was used throughout the home in decorations. The bride's table featured a white lace cloth over red linen, and held a three tiered wedding cake topped with ivory satin and pearl wedding bells. Red and white flowers with fern and white candelabrum with red tapers decorated the table.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Diane Mauffray, bride's table; Mrs. Ronnie Bilbo, wedding cake; and Mrs. Lynn Holden, guest register.

For traveling, the bride chose a periwinkle blue velvet blazer with plaid wool skirt and gray accessories. A white orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

The couple will reside in Bay St. Louis.

Out-of-town guests included Dr. and Mrs. John C. Kistler, Jack, Stephanie and Scott Kistler; Mrs. Vivian Dunham and Ms. Carol A. Monti.

National VFW auxiliary president plans January visit

Mrs. Jeannette Frank of Two Rivers, Wis., national president of the Ladies auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars plans her official visit to Mississippi for the 1980-81 year January 11. She will arrive at the Gulfport Regional Airport at 10:40 a.m. for a two-day stay on the Gulf Coast. Mrs. Frank was elected president at the 67th National Convention in Chicago, Ill., August 1980. She directs patriotic and service programs for the more than 626,000-member organizations throughout the United States and overseas.

"The power of patriotism, Mrs. Frank's theme, is a mighty force uniting patriots of all ages, races, and creeds in the love for America that will keep our country strong and free," according to Mrs. Norma Bonney of Post No. 3951 in Pass Christian.

"This patriotic power is urgently needed during this time of unrest, inflation, unemployment, energy and other shortages. Patriotism can make the difference. It can change wrong to right and failure to victory," she added.

"Mrs. Frank urges all Americans to join with members of the Ladies Auxiliary VFW in a powerful patriotic revival to meet the challenges of these critical times," Mrs. Bonney concluded.

Mrs. Jean Woodard, visit chairman of Gulfport, has planned two days of entertainment for the distinguished visitor. She will be greeted at the airport by Mrs. Patricia Blakeney, state president, and other state and local officers and members.

She will be received through an isle of honor formed by members holding American flags. District one auxiliaries will host a reception at Post

No. 2434 in Biloxi from 2-4 p.m. Mrs. Frank will address the assembly following the reception.

An evening of dining and dancing will be held at the Sugar Mill Marina Sunday evening.

Monday, Jan. 12 Mrs. Frank will tour "Beauvoir" the Jefferson Davis Shrine, followed by a lunch at Mary Mahoney's.

During the afternoon Mrs. Frank will tour both Biloxi and Gulfport Veterans Administration Centers. A special interest is the assembly area of the buddy poppy, the VFW flower at the Biloxi VA.

A reception will be held Monday evening at the Pass Christian VFW Post No. 5931 hosted by the auxiliary.

Before leaving the Coast Mrs. Frank will appear on, Good Morning South Mississippi, Tuesday morning at 9 a.m. with hostess Barbara Salloum.

There are 76 auxiliaries in the state of Mississippi with a membership of more than 6,000. Members from each sector are expected for the national president's visit. Headquarters will be the Biloxi Hilton.

Hancock horse sets record

(Special to The Sea Coast Echo)
PEARL RIVER, La. — Three Hancock County horses made it to the winners circle Sunday at Oak Downs, and one took with it a new meet record.
The Frank Comfort family of the Kiln community had two winners, including Teddy's Echo which set a new mark for six furlongs by winning the ninth race in a time of 1:17.9, nearly two full seconds better than the previous record of 1:19.8 set Oct. 12 by Brother.
Teddy's Echo is owned by Frank Comfort, trained by one of his sons, Frankie, and was ridden by another son, Marty. Teddy's Echo whipped Dee Dee's Boy.
The Comforts also won the 440-yard 12th race as Deal One More turned back Sandy's Hanna.
Another Hancock County family, the James Watsons of Waveland, visited the winners circle as their Record Host, ridden by Marty Comfort, captured the 3/8-mile 10th race against Watergate.

Berry nixes police pistol matches in Mississippi

Lieutenant General Sidney Berry, commissioner of public safety, recently advised the president of the National Rifle Association that the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers Training Academy will be unable to host the National Police Revolver Championship matches in 1981.

The Training Academy, has hosted these matches for the past 12 years.

"After thoroughly reviewing the law enforcement officer training requirements projected for 1981 and carefully considering all relevant factors, Training Academy Director Kent McDaniel and I reluctantly concluded that the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers Training Academy will be unable to conduct the NRA National Police Revolver Championship matches in 1981," Berry stated.

"There are several reasons for this decision. The Training Academy's purpose is to train Mississippi law enforcement officers from municipal, county, and state agencies, and these Mississippi law enforcement agencies are increasing their use of the Training Academy," he continued.

"Additionally, the Training Academy is working to improve the quality of its training and increase its service to the Mississippi law enforcement community. Finally, pending legislation to establish minimum standards for Mississippi law enforcement officers will significantly increase the training load for the Academy," he added.

Association President John B. Layton responded, "We at NRA are naturally disappointed - we understand the reasons for your decision. We are initiating a search for a new site for the championships and hope that we will be able to find a host city that can equal the performance at Jackson."
"The NRA is indeed grateful to the Mississippi Department of Public Safety for the outstanding efforts made in conducting these important Championships during the last twelve years," Layton said.

Church cagers to meet

The Bay-Waveland Church League is conducting an organizational meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at First Baptist Church on Main Street in Bay St. Louis to plan the league's 1981 basketball season.
This year's basketball program will include men's and women's teams, League President Jack Hoda reported.

"We invite any church in the program to attend Monday's meeting," Hoda said.
For information, call Hoda at 467-5175; Bob Howard, league secretary, at 467-2058; or Rev. Willis Britt, pastor of Main Street United Methodist Church, at 467-4538.

Waterfowl stamp art competition underway

Mississippi artists can begin sending in their entries for this year's waterfowl stamp art competition, according to the Department of Wildlife Conservation.

Now in its fourth year, the contest is held to select the best piece of art to appear on the state's waterfowl stamp, which will be issued by the agency in early 1981.

The contest is open only to Mississippi resident artists, either amateur or professional. The winning entry will be selected by a panel of three judges in mid-March.

"Artists must restrict their subject matter to a living species of North American migratory ducks or geese common to Mississippi," according to Mississippi Outdoors editor David Watts.

"Wood ducks, mallards, green-winged teal, canvasbacks and pintails are excluded since they have appeared recently on the stamp."

Watts said that artist should remember that whatever species they choose to portray should be the dominant feature of their design.

Bob Tompkins of Greenville won last year's contest with a painting of a pair of pintails. A public school art instructor in Washington County, Tompkins art was selected from a field of 45 entries.

The waterfowl art contest deadline is March 20, 1981. Complete rules and regulations are available by writing State Waterfowl Stamp Art Contest, P.O. Box 451, Jackson, MS 39205.

All seats are reserved.

There's an Answer!

by Norman Vincent Peale
and Ruth Stafford Peale

Lost everything

Q. Well, I don't suppose anybody ever wrote to you about something like this. It is about being talked into a nursing home by a relative and an auctioneer who also sold my home against my will. So you might say I lost everything but my life, and I can't forget it. So maybe you can give me some consolation. I am an 89-year-old man but can get around pretty good and my mind is excellent.

A. Being bitter and resentful now about what's been done to you will only compound your misery. It does sound as if your affairs were taken out of your control. But at least you can be grateful for a warm and comfortable place to live, people to care for you and the opportunity to help in planning interesting activities among the residents of the nursing home. Life can really be very good for you if you make up your mind to make it so.

We are sending you our pamphlet Make Living an Exciting Experience which we hope will be of help. Anyone wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N. Y. 12564.

Never had a date

Q. I am female, 22-years-old and a college senior. I am nice, friendly, kind, thoughtful and well-liked by people of both sexes.

I am not beautiful but I take pains to look as good as possible. I am reasonably intelligent, articulate and well-read.

But never in my life have I had a date - none whatsoever. There's a young man here at college who is absolutely the sweetest, most affectionate guy I've ever known, and I'm very attracted to him.

He is always nice to me, but I might as well be his sister. What does it take to get that guy to ask me out?

What do the other girls have that I don't have? Is it possible that it is God's will that I'll never date?

A. You sound like a well-organized, common sense girl. And I don't believe you will ever go off the beam morally to get dates as some less bright people do.

All you need to do is just be fun to be with... laugh. Be alive. Take a genuine interest in everyone of both sexes. Be a personality force among your peers. Guard against being dominating. Be feminine in the best sense. Femininity has an inherent attraction when skillfully exercised.

Unfriendly stepchildren

Q. I've been married four years and I love my husband very much. The problem is his two daughters, 10 and 13, who live with their mother and visit us every weekend. They don't seem to like me very much. When I enter the room they leave it. They never talk to me or show any awareness that I'm even in the same room. They never help me around the house.

Their father says there is nothing he can do about this. Am I wrong in not wanting them to come visit anymore? Am I wrong for trying to get them to understand that I'm married to their father and they will have to accept this?

A. Their mother's attitude toward you may, understandably, condition the children's response. Your best procedure is not to push yourself with them. Just be friendly and kindly in a relaxed manner. In time they will see you for what you are, a nice woman who loves their father, whom they love. Their attitude toward you should soften when approached in this way. Patience!

AFRO-AMERICAN STORIES

A series of African and Afro-American stories for children seven to 12 years of age is being aired at 1:30 p.m., Sundays on the Mississippi Educational Television Network.

The series features a contemporary black family, the Jacksons, whose lifestyles and activities incorporate many aspects of black folklore.

"Much of the action centers around the experiences of the two children - Lavonne and her brother Kwame," an ETV spokesman said.

All the generations of Jacksons together create an 'extended black family,' rich in traditions and folklore. The folklore is presented through folktales, narratives, legends, songs, customs, crafts and ceremonies.

BY DR. L.S.

IN TIMES OF GREAT NATIONAL DISTRESS, wise and prudent men in every generation have turned to the Word of God for counsel and direction. Let us hope that our generation shall find it in their hearts to do no less.

In Psalms 33:11-12, the Bible says: "The counsel of the Lord standeth forever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations. Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord..."

Some 204 years ago, this great nation had a humble beginning. A profound dependence upon God; prayer and worship claimed priority in the hearts and lives of all the people from the humblest of the nation's citizens to the men who held the highest positions of trust and leadership in the land.

There has been much change in our attitudes and life-styles over these 200 and more years...and sad to say, too much of this change has been for the worse.

Lying, deceit, theft, fraud, bribery, extortion and the like are not only commonplace, but in a measure, accepted throughout our society by those in the various professions as well as those who lead us, from city hall to the Nation's capital.

Even the membership rolls of the nation's churches are consciously tolerate of such. How tragic, how sad! Loud and clear, God's Word declares:

"RIGHTEOUSNESS EXALTETH A NATION: BUT SIN IS A REPROACH TO ANY PEOPLE." - Prov. 14:34. I am saddened by what has happened to my beloved country.

Bribery and deceit are found in members of the Congress and other public officials.

Let us hope that all Americans will turn back to God and His Word; to reason and right, as a result of the unpleasant experiences of our past.

It is our opinion that many Americans, some national leaders among them, are acutely aware of our nation's sagging morals.

Let us all join in prayer to turn this country around, and bring it back to God!

We have a solemn Biblical obligation to pray for our nation's leaders - whoever they are - whether we personally like them or not.

As Americans we have the right to freely criticize our elected or appointed leaders.

But as Christians, we have no Biblical right to criticize any man we have not first prayed for.

Have you ever prayed for your president, your governor, congressmen or other political leaders? Are you aware of what the Bible says about this grave responsibility?

First, there is the Biblical injunction to be discreet, peaceable and responsible citizens; to have respect for authority. "Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake; whether it be to the king as supreme; or unto governors..." - I Peter 2:13-14.

Secondly, and even of more importance, is the God-given responsibility to pray for THOSE IN AUTHORITY. "I exhort therefore, that first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty." - I Tim. 2:1-2.
